

14 High-Style Hamptons Houses

AD rounds up the best homes on Long Island, from Southampton to Sag Harbor

By Hannah Martin

May 23, 2016 [excerpt]

Since the late 19th century, Manhattanites have been fleeing the sticky heat of the city each summer for the breezy coast of Long Island. In fact, a 1983 article in The New York Times deemed the cluster of villages around old Southampton “as close an approach to Eden as can be found in a long journey,” noting also that “well-bred men and women find a congenial atmosphere, refined attractions in plenty.” And if you’ve ever caught an episode of Seinfeld, Sex and the City, or The Real Housewives of New York, you might note that not a lot has changed. So for those of you dreaming about your entrée into Hamptons real estate—or perhaps just researching a summer timeshare—we’ve rounded up the best-looking homes from the pages of AD, from a multicolor modern abode in Hampton Bays to a Shingle Style beauty in East Hampton.

After living for more than a decade in a Shingle Style home in East Hampton, architect Frank Greenwald crafted a modern two-story abode for himself and his wife in Sag Harbor, featuring big bay windows and a gently sloping hipped roof.